

this is ridiculous! if someone signs up for the DNC list, the instruct the telemarketers not to call them....EVER! If they have done business with that company in the recent past, and then signed up for the list, then leave them alone. The contribution is once, and that is final. Do not bother people who contribute once to do it over and over again. Obviously if someone signed up for the list, they did not want to be called and if they want any further contact with the telemarketer, they will call the company and NOT want the company to call them.
